Want To Go To Pelican Point?

The other day a fellow in South Bay was saying he had to hurry to Pahokee to make up his attendance at the Rotary, but that he would be right back after the meeting. Well, you know how those Rotary boys are about their 100% attendance records. Do you reckon they are the same way attending church? But what he had said about going to Pahokee just to eat dinner and get something back to the time when travelling from South Bay to Pahokee could be something of an adventure, and more than likely you would have right smart of an appetite by the time you got there.

I recollect one time, it must have been along about 1915, while I was living in Okeelanta, an old man stopped off there looking for his son. Well, none of us knew his son, but somebody on a passing fish boat told him the boy was at Pelican Point. Since I had a boat, nothing would do but I must take him to Pelican Point. I looked it up on a map to see where in the heck it was. It was just south of Pahokee and was the old time name for Bacon's Point.

It looked to be tolerably close, about twelve miles, so I told the old boy I would go for five dollars. I wanted an excuse to see more of the lake anyway. My boat was nearly new, 16 foot and flat bottomed and had a one cylinder 4 horsepower engine, two cycle of course. Since it was pretty breezy that day and I didn't want any trouble while on the lake, I cleaned the spark plug, smoothed the coil points, filed the timer contacts and oiled everything that could need oiling. Then with a raincoat and a piece of oilcloth that had been a table cover, we were ready to go.

Of course, all this took time and it was now about the middle of the afternoon, but the boat would make six miles an hour so I followed we ought to be there by first dark. It was about four miles to South Bay and we did not notice the wind, but from there on it was all open lake and the wind was whipping up some pretty respectable waves. Every now and again one would splash over and drown the engine. As we neared the south end of Torrey we passed close to John Aumap's big black hulled freight boat "N. B. Broward." It was anchored off the creek at Emmett McLaughlin's store where some men were ferrying vegetables out to it in a seine boat.

It was pretty rough going up the west side of Torrey so I cut through the Pass to get Kreamer to windward. It was already getting dark. Something must have gone wrong with my arithmetic. Six miles an hour times two hours ought to have made the twelve miles to the Point. Oh well, maybe the map was wrong. Out in Pelican Bay we had to keep way off shore on account of shoal water and it was rougher here than before.

Every wave sloshed us good. The old man, wrapped in the oil-skin, sat in the stern where he kept partly dry, but the steering wheel was forward and on the windward side and I got the full benefit of every drollop. It wasn't long before I was saturated and shivering like a fisherman with the ague. That was bad enough, but the boat's exhaust stuck out through a hole in the side of the boat and about every other wave would plug that pipe and kill the engine.

By keeping hold of the timer, sometimes I could retard the spark and catch an explosion before the engine quit. But three times out of four I had to get down and rock that slippery fly-wheel until she would start again. It was pitchy dark and that wind was coming right off the frozen peach orchards of Georgia. After awhile I began to wonder how I would ever know when we were opposite Pelican Point, and if we would be frozen to icicles when we got there.

At last some lights twinkled off across the bay, so for lack of any better target I steered for them. It looked like we would never get close to those lights but at last I could see the curl line of trees, and then all at once, bless your soul, the iron shore under the propeller began to pound bottom, and it was hard sand bottom too. Swinging around to deeper water, I stopped the engine and dropped the anchor over.

The bottom was so hard it wouldn't hold, so overboard I went and pushed it down good and solid with my feet. The water was neck deep but I didn't get a particle wetter than I had been. There was a two story house on the ridge so I ambled up and knocked on the door. A boy opened it. "Where is Pelican Point?" I asked. "Right here," he said, "You are smack dab in the middle of it!"

Out there in the lake while shivering and shaking, I had been wishing for a good fire to warm up by, but it seemed that the people in the Everglades did not go in for heating stoves, so we appeared to be out of luck. Now here all I could see was a big castiron cooking range, and it was red hot. I hurried over to that stove and stood there shaking until you could hear the windows rattle while I told the lady our predicament. She said we could spend the night there, so I borrowed a seine boat and not being able to pole it against the wind, had to wade out neck deep again to get the old man. You know, that lake was twice as cold as it had been a few minutes before!

While we were inside thawing out, the lady told us her name was Jones. Her husband, who had a fish camp there, had gone to Torrey Island and would be back in the morning. Meanwhile, and most important, she told her oldest boy to get some dry clothes for me. Spare duds must have been tolerably scarce in that family. He said all he could find was a pair of his fisherman's woolen underwear. He was about fifteen and kind of underdressed for his age.

Even in those days I didn't look too good in store clothes but in those long-johns I probably resembled something the cat dragged in. The sleeves were about elbow length, the legs came to just below my knees and he couldn't find a pair of britches to cover them up. I daresay sit down for fear of splitting something. They were, as you might say, form fitting. But, honey child they were warm!

Next morning I looked out to see if my boat was afloat. It was just barely. All night the waves had been slopping through that exhaust pipe hole until now she was about full. A big strapping fisherman from another camp poked me out in the seineboat. We bailed her out and brought the spark coil back for Mrs. Jones to pole back with the dried-out coil, there was nothing to do but bake gently in her oven for a couple of hours. Then, after being unbuilt the engine and put it dried out too, and head back for Okeelanta, where I arrived just 24 hours after starting.

Oh yes, I like to forget to tell you. When Mr. Jones returned he told us the old man's son had left for Ft. Lauderdale where he was going to try to find his father. He had been on the "N. B. Broward" when we passed her the day before!

Masters and Wardens Assn Meets In Pahokee

STEPPING STONES TO GOOD HEALTH was the theme of the Annual May Day festivities held at the Belle Glade High School auditorium. Cherry Bridges, Charles Thompson, Skipper Joan Forlenberry, Patsy Dooley, Janet Connel Schoppel, Danny Shivar and Bootsy Weather. Also Herald, Paul White; Crown bearer, Kenny Rayburn; Doug Murray and Butch Abbott, train bearers. Flowers girls were Ann Thompson, Kathy Brown, Jane Harris Jacki Kirckman, Cynthia Thelaud, Aggie Gressinger. Approximately all students in the Elementary School participated in the Maypole winding and other activities. All teachers cooperated to make the affair a huge success. It Pays To Know How To Hem Skirts

Being able to put inconspicuous even hem into a dress or skirt is a real asset for any woman. Fashion changes skirt lengths and sometimes laundering and dry cleaning, too. Even brand new clothes often need hem adjustments. Miss Mary Todd, Home Demonstration Agent, describes what to aim for when you tackle a hem alteration.

First, decide on a becoming length for the skirt and measure the distance up from floor with proper shoes on, she says. Wear a proper foundation garment, and be careful that the garment is properly adjusted on your figure. Use an up-to-date skirt marker to make the task easier for the person you have called upon to mark the skirt. Ask to have the markings placed close together to obtain a good guide for turning the hemline evenly.

If this is a new garment, be certain the dress or skirt is complete in every detail and has been allowed to hang at least 48 hours to allow all bias to stretch out. If you are letting out a hem, be certain before remarking it that you have carefully pressed the hemline fold out of lower skirt portion. When you are ready to turn and construct your hem, be sure to allow a wide enough hem to provide enough weight for the skirt to hang properly. Miss Todd says the right width of the hem is governed by the style of the dress and also by the type of the fabric. However, after you have determined the right width, be certain to make it uniform throughout the skirt.

THE BOOK

It is surprising how little we know about the bible. Most of us are willing to admit its importance. We buy it and take good care of it, but seldom read it. A chapter now and then, or a verse or two in connection with some daily devotional is usually the extent of our bible study. A book that contains the words of eternal life is not as familiar to us as the daily comic strip, the sports news, or our favorite literature!

Behold, God is in salvation; I will trust, and not be afraid; for the Lord Jehovah is my strength and my song. (Isaiah 12:2.)
The daughter of Nathaniel Hawthorne, famous American author once wrote, "No one can tell how often and how deeply my struggles are to be good." Though cultured and gay in childhood, her life gradually increased in unhappiness. At 45, she realized she had failed in her pursuits—she was still not good.
Then she dedicated her life to God. Fulton Oursler wrote of her later life that Rose Hawthorne knew "there was a God. She knew Him intimately and for his sake she gave everything."
Rose Hawthorne, who gave everything for God's sake, won her battle through Him. Nathaniel Hawthorne's "little Rosebud" was victorious because she acknowledged the Lord as the victor in her life. She dedicated everything to the Lord whom she knew to be gracious and wonderful.
There to victory. but will the Doorbell Vitamins do the job?

It's a point to consider in evaluating vitamin products sold by house-to-house vendors or other nonprofessional outlets. Persons who buy vitamin products on a doorstep diagnosis of their vitamin needs depend on luck to select the vitamins their health requires. In addition, they take a gamble that the vitamins have the right potency. If not, the product probably will do no harm but it certainly will not achieve the desired result. Your physician and pharmacist are professionally trained in the matter of vitamins. Let their experience guide you in your selection.

Does Your Family, Inc. have an annual report?

In some ways it certainly makes a lot of sense to look at your family as a business.

For instance, businesses set aside money each year to meet their future needs. Your family should, too, because you'll have a lot of future needs... college educations for the children... a new house... a retirement fund.

You might call the money you'll need for these things a reserve for future operating expenses. And you should start building that reserve right now.

One of the best ways to do this is by regular purchase of U. S. Savings Bonds. They're a safe, sure investment that's backed by the strength of the greatest nation on earth.

And now they're better than ever. Every U. S. Series E Savings Bond purchased since February 1, 1957 pays 3 1/2% interest when held to maturity. It matures earlier, too—in only 8 years and 11 months—and pays higher interest in the earlier years.

So this year look at your family's finances with a businessman's eye. And make it your New Year's Resolution to start building a fund for the future by buying Savings Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan at work—or regularly where you bank.

Neglected Children Can Be Taken By Court For Placement Elsewhere

BY GENE DUNCAN Assistant Juvenile Counselor.

Many people come to this office asking about adopting children. There have been some isolated cases when we have placed a child in temporary custody of someone for subsequent adoption, but these cases are the exception and not the rule.

It's not indeed when we realize that so many children are neglected by their parents to the point where our courts have to intervene and remove the child from their custody. Such removal is done as an immediate expedient for the welfare of the child and is done with the hope that the parents will make efforts to correct their shortcomings and plan for the return of their children.

Unfortunately, not many parents make the changes we would like to see, and still more unfortunate is the fact that many times when we are convinced that a favorable change has been made, we later find that the change was of short duration and again have to remove the child from their custody.

On the other hand, we have many qualified parents who would like to take care of these unfortunate children as their own. I receive calls and callers every week with such requests. It would be nice if we could make such changes, but the law favors the natural parents. To remove a child permanently and place it up for adoption requires much proof of inadequacy of parents.

Such proof is not easily attainable. Adoption laws in this state are so strict, that to adopt a child through the usual channels is a long, drawn-out affair and often a futile one. It is far safer to adopt through an agency, but a difficult task indeed.

I have placed a few children with prospective parents with the full understanding that they stand a chance of losing this child later on. Our court can give only temporary custody in such cases to individual couples.

The only permanent custody

Tax Freedom Day Observed May 13

National Tax Freedom Holiday this year fell on May 13. That was the first day in 1938 on which the average citizen could call a dollar his own. All he has earned from January 1 to May 13 he will have to pay out in taxes, local, state and federal.

To pay his share of the federal budget along the average citizen will be helping build a stack of $10 bills to a height of $21 million. Noted economists point out that the $74 billion budget is nearly two and a half times our farmers' total cash receipts for all of the products of American agriculture in 1956.

As matters stand now, the average American is working around 35 cents out of every dollar he earns.

National Tax Freedom Holiday was first observed in 1948, when the date was April 27. By contrast, in 1920 it would have been observed on February 28 and in 1940 on March 27.

Freedom's Foundation recognized the unique holiday by awarding its George Washington Honor Medal to originator, Dallas L. Hostetter, of Winter Park, Florida. Hostetter is executive director of Florida Retailers Association.

Miss Martha Faye Davidson, has been selected by the Palm Beach County Junior Red Cross of which she is secretary for leadership training course to be held in Tuxedo, N.C., in August.

She was chosen for her leadership ability and character. A member of the Junior class of Belle Glade High School, she is working with the local Junior Red Cross under the sponsorship of Mrs. Ruth Langworthy. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Davidson of 240 Ave. A.

The importance of having a social security card in your possession at all times was emphasized in a statement made today by R. C. While this statement was made primarily for the information of the students who will soon be in the job market looking for summer work, Gehrkens pointed out that it applies equally to all workers.

Migrant Workers Cleared For Work In Atlantic Seaboard States Now

A total of 35,997 migrant farm workers in Florida have been signed up for jobs in the Atlantic Seaboard States, James T. Vocelle, State Industrial Commission Chairman, reported today.

That was 2,171 less than the number signed up in 1957. Of the eighteen locations in Florida where workers were interviewed and offered jobs in other states, Pahokee led in

Construction Will Begin Soon On Navigation System At Airport

Palm Beach County Glades Airport at Pahokee will become an important link in the nation's air navigation system with the installation of a very high frequency omni-directional radio range by the Civil Aeronautics Administration, it was announced this week.

News of the pending installation was announced earlier in April by local sources. This week L. C. Elliot, CAA Region Two Administrator said:

"Engineering surveys have been initiated at the air site and actual construction is planned to begin within 90 days."

The new aid to navigation is to be part of a vast web of invisible electronic network that laces the nation to form the Federal Airways System.

The omni-directional radio, popularly called the "VOR," will be easily recognized by its igloo-like shape. Enclosed in an eight-foot high plastic dome, it will be mounted atop a 10-foot building. From inside the protecting plastic dome, the VOR antenna will send out stationary radio signals 150 miles in all directions.

Special instruments in an aircraft flying overhead will pick up these signals and, at a glance the pilot can tell if he is on or off the course.

Another important feature of the VOR will be its ability to transmit helpful weather reports and special flying conditions from ground communication stations.

In the future the CAA will add another feature to already capable electronic equipment. VOR will be equipped with another measuring device for distance. Using this feature the pilot can tell just how far he is from any given point. When added, the VOR unit will be called VORTAC.

New Stamp Honors Horticulturist

The Belle Glade Garden Club announced at its regular meeting a new 3 cent stamp available at the post-office honoring garden clubs and horticulturists which was issued through the Ithaca, N. Y. post-office. This stamp is in commemoration of the 100th anniversary of Liberty Hyde Bailey, the noted horticulturist, in conjunction with the centennial celebration in his honor at Cornell University.

All members of garden clubs in the area are urged to ask for these stamps.

Members enjoyed a question and answer period on horticulture with Mrs. Ivan Horn in charge. Mrs. Frank Friend of Pahokee won the specimen contest on Amaryllis.

Installation of officers will take place at a luncheon at the Country Club with Mrs. Louis Sherman of West Palm Beach as installing officer on June 5. Mrs. George Stanley will be chairman of the hostess committee.

The luncheon will be catered by Mrs. George Rawls.

er and sing the blues last winter... they planted corn instead and when it froze, they replanted!

Proof of this was evident to the 86 senators and 435 House members comprising the U. S. Congress, on Wednesday, May 14, when they were guests at a Florida "Sweet Corn Feed" through the courtesy of the Florida Fruit & Vegetable Association.

It is dramatically evident that the Florida farmers didn't sit placidly through their adversity and hope for a miracle. The non-profit cooperative association has arranged to supply the Senate and House dining rooms with 4,000 ears of Sweet Corn, enough to give every legislator his fill of this Florida spring delicacy.

The event was hosted by Florida's congressional delegation and ranking officials of the Florida Fruit & Vegetable Association.

Details were arranged by Senator Speasard L. Holland, member of the Senate Committee on Agriculture, and Congressman D. R. (Billy) Mathews, member of the House Committee on Agriculture.

Local FSES Completes Testing Of Students For Labor Market

Thousands of high school seniors in Florida are standing on the brink of their newest and greatest adventure, according to James T. Voele, State Industrial Commission chairman.

After graduation in June, they will be facing innumerable situations that have never confronted them before. The situation will be new no matter whether they go to college or go to work in either a summer or a permanent job.

For those going to work, testing, counseling and job-finding activities are being carried on by the Florida State Employment Service.

The Belle Glade office has just completed tests among some 75 young students who will be entering the labor market in June, according to J. W. Mosley, Provisional Manager.

The tests include check lists, general aptitude battery and Kuder preference test, says

Mrs. Imogene Fontaine, and they will allow the FSES to determine the students' likes and dislikes and help the student determine which field of endeavor they should choose.

Through the testing the students can be narrowed down to about a half-dozen occupations or trades from a testing field of about 2,000.

Employers in the Glades who can absorb some of these high school or college students for the summer are asked to contact their FSES office in Belle Glade.

Commenting on the service provided employers, State Employment Service Director W. Newwood, said in addition to the advantages to the employer in giving him a fresh pool of eager, easily-trained talent, the counseling and general aptitude testing gives him direction and confidence in choosing a vocation or job.

"It answers many confusing questions for him that will keep him from choosing the wrong vocation and spending many months finding himself."

Girl Scout News

Girl Scout Roundup

Approximately 250 attended the District Girl Scout Roundup held in Pahokee Friday afternoon and evening, including scouts from Clewiston, Belle Glade and Pahokee.

Outdoor games were enjoyed and a nose bag lunch was brought by each one with Pahokee scouts furnishing the cold drinks.

Skits were presented by a Brownie and Intermediate scout from each group and group singing of scout songs was followed by the lighting of the campfire. This was the theme of campout and was based on an Indian legend. Mrs. William Plummer of Pahokee was in charge of arrangements.

Girl Scouts Model Patricia Hodges, 5th grade interned at Girl Scout, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hodges and Jane Zumpf, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Zumpf, third grade Brownie, were among the Girl Scouts in Palm Beach County, who modeled at Burdick's Hibiscus Tea Room Saturday afternoon. Patricia modeled Girl Scout uniforms, shorts and daggers. Jane modeled pajamas. Brownie uniforms, shirts and shorts.

Having luncheon at the tea room and enjoying the fashion show from Belle Glade were Mrs. Richard Hodges, Mrs. Lee Berryhill and Lee Ann, Alice Rashley, Mrs. Harold Zumpf, Dr. and Mrs. R. J. Allen, Jr., Miss Carol Allen and Bobby Allen.

The Intermediate Girl Scouts under their leaders Mrs. Room and Hodges and Mrs. Lee Berryhill are working hard for the district awards to be held Tuesday May 27.

The girls met Monday at the Scout hut included in the district awards were a movie shown, "Girls Growing Up." On Wednesday the group took lessons and the last task dance under the instruction of Mrs. Donald Plummer of Pahokee.

They are also planning a weekend on May 30 at Highways Hammock State Park near Sebring.

Too Late To Classify

BY RUSSEL KAY

Watching a state grow is like watching a child grow, especially if it is your state and your child. You don't notice much change from day to day but the change is occurring just the same and before you realize it both have grown up.

Most of us live in a sort of restricted circle. We know what is happening in our own backyard or down the street but we do not grasp the overall picture of growth and development taking place all over the state.

With this thought in view the Florida State Chamber of Commerce recently issued a comprehensive story that gives us a word picture of what has and is happening in Florida.

From it we learn that Florida has over four million permanent residents whose combined incomes total over six and a half billion dollars and that's a lot of lettuce in anybody's language.

We are gaining new residents at the amazing rate of 2,900 each week. As they are scattered over the state, this influx is hardly noticed but if they all located in one place it would create a new city the size of Chipley, Frostproof or Goulds. Think of 52 such communities being established in Florida every year and you will begin to get the idea.

Add to this number of newcomers from other states our present internal population increase of about 1,100 births and you have a total of 4,000 new people that require food, shelter, clothing, etc. These are new consumers and greater buying power.

Some of these new residents are older folks with income or pensions that permit them to retire, but the larger number are executives, business men and laborers we need to work in the many new industries, large and small that are being established and older ones that are constantly expanding.

While tourism and the citrus industry are still strong factors in our economy we now have many other avenues of income and employment found in our growing cattle industry, pulp and paper industry, commercial fishing, truck farming, garment and textiles, and countless others.

Big corporations such as Chemstrand near Pensacola and the United States Sugar Corporation at Clewiston employ many thousands while small industries give work to anywhere from a dozen to several hundred workers.

The commercial production of ramie in the Everglades gives promise of providing us with another giant industry in the production of this valuable fiber which has several times the strength of cotton. About 2,500 acres are now being grown and much larger acreage is being contemplated.

The years ahead are bright with promise for Florida. Top financiers of the nation have their eyes on us, the country's leading industries are fully aware of our progress and more and more of them are establishing branches or setting up production plants here. Our leadership in the atomic field is a matter of keen interest to our scientists and many of the top flight men in this field are now working in Florida.

Florida certainly has reason to count her blessings for they are legion.

Migrant workers are on the march again from Florida up through the eastern states.

Families, friends and loaded (thru) plus a sprinkling of Cadillac are heading north to lend a hand in picking beans, tomatoes, fruits, and vegetables now ripening on farms from Georgia to Connecticut.

Children, too, from tiny babies to 15-year-olds are a regular part of the northward trek, for they must go along with their parents who find in the annual harvest steady and profitable employment.

But school's not out for the children, warned Clem J. Dencke, head of the wage-hour field office at Miami. "They should continue their education in the migrant facilities available in several states or go directly to the regular school."

"All children under 16 should attend school," he said, and explained that, "In every state it is against the Federal law for a child under 16 to work on farms during school hours where he lives."

Is there a need for Continuous Advertising?

Well, should Rabbis and Ministers

... preach only one sermon or so a year?

People are against sin anyway, so why harp on it.

Policemen

... stop patrolling streets and highways?

People know the laws and will obey them.

Teachers

... eliminate review lessons? The children will never forget what they have been taught.

Traffic Lights

be turned off to save electricity? Everyone knows where the danger spots are and will be cautious without extra warning.

Or should

... a lesson be taken from Notre Dame Cathedral, which, although it has been offering the same services at the same location for some six centuries, still ring the bells every day to let people know it is there.
